CEYLON'S TEMPLE DANCERS KNOW NO RATIONING OF JUNK JEWELRY

Beads and belts and bracelets, bejeweled high-crowned hats, and fancifully draped silken skirts costume these dancers in Kandy's Temple of the Tooth—the Dalada Maligawa—where Buddha's sacred right tooth is hidden from all but the most exalted eyes. Every year in midsummer the Perahera ceremonies are held in honor of the cherished relic. In a grassy enclosure of the temple these dancers enliven the celebration with their angular, rhythmic routines to the beat of drums and the metallic crash of cymbals. In return for their services to the temple, the dancers are given land. Only men take part in these ceremonies as dancers or musicians.
